

Business Name Change Checklist

By Jake R Brady

- New Business Name
 - Choose a new business name.
 - Set goals around the attributes of the new name.
 - Check if your chosen name is not taken.
 - Select a group of trusted customers and talked to them about the new business name.
 - Pass a resolution to change the company's name to the company's directors.
 - Register your new business name with your state attorney general.
- Changing Business Name
 - Change the name on the automatic answering telephone.
 - Ask each employee to re-record their voicemail if they use the company name.
 - Change the name on the logo of the web site.
 - Update all the pages on the website.
 - Get the domain for the new name and redirect the old site.
 - Leave a 'trail' in the meta tag description and keyword of the old name.
 - Have a transition on the return address of the envelopes so you don't lose your cash flow when your customers throw away your invoices.
 - Make it into a celebration so the old time employees have closure.
 - Write a press release and post it on your website explaining why.
 - Update your listings in directories.
 - Post a press release on PRWeb, PRNewswire and the like.
 - Send a letter to all your customers: current, former and potential.
 - Make sure all the employees know, especially the ones off site.
 - Send a letter and email to all your vendors.
 - Order a new sign for out front.
 - Get a trinket: mousepads, tshirts, pens, baseball caps as appropriate.
